Norming can be more utterly unattractive to the reasonable mind than the conduct of the ordinary suicide. It is generally a greedy selfishness which makes a man commit suicide, and he is apt to display it to the extent of positive piggishness in making his arrangements. The suicide seems to consider that the service he renders society in taking himself out of it quite compensates for any trouble he may put society to in the disposition of his remains. One "H. B. Page," who lived in Laconia, in New Hampshire, determined the other day to kill himself. A man of any thoughtful-Page," who lived in Laconia, in New ness would have killed himself in a place convenient for his surviving friends. It is hardly too much to ask of him that he should buy his own coffin much to ask of smuly system of the government pursued at the Ohio School, and that it was much praised, and was decided to be and save the undertaker's bill by disposing himself snugly in it before committing what the reporters call the rash act, also visited many respects our own institutes are much in advance of those older inthere, Page goes to Concord and takes a stitutions. Perhaps no better lesson comes than that glad anthem which echoed to the heavens almost two thousand years gone by, yet from the celebration of this day, when anthem, carol and even the cherished story of Bethlehem gather new freshuess and beauty, Humanity itself finds better and sweeter impulses and is the higher by that brief space at least. And, somehow, when one stops to think it seems as if not ouly the poetry and beauty of the year was all, by common consent, crowded into this brief fortnight, but also as if the hosanna that proclaimed "Glory to God in the High-years had passed, for in every observance one finds a suggestion of joyful forgiveness and a force to propel into a nobler, purer life.

And so, while all are filled with preparations for family gatherings—while soon around the bounteous board the old-time friends will pledge their faith anew and sorrowful feuds will lose one half their bitterness—while busy whisperings tell of interchange of sweet surprise in purchased gift or better homewrought token—while supple fingers are twining wreaths and bending fragrant boughs of immortelles, while Christians.

Nature's Great Remedy

Throat and Lungs.

FOR THE

It is gratifying to us to imform the public that Dr. L. Q. C. Wishard's Pine Tree Tar Cordial, for Throat and Lung Diseases, has gained an enviable reputation from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and from thence to some of the first families in Europe, not through the press alone, but by persons throughout the States actually benefitted and cured at his office. While he publishes less, so say our reporters, he is unable to supply the demand. It gains and holds a reputation reputation—First. Not by stopping cough, but by loosening and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter collected about the throat and bronchial tubes, which causes irritation.

Second. It removes the cause of irritation (which produces cough) of the mucous membrane and bronch ial tubes, assists the lungs to act and throw off the unhealthy secretions, and purifies the blood.

throw off the unhealthy secretions, and purifies the blood.

Third. It is free from squills, lobelia, ipecac and opium, of which most throat and lung remedies are composed, which allay cough only, and disorganize the stomach. It has a soothing effect on the stomach, acts on the liver and kidneys, and lymphatic and nervous regions, thus reaching to every part of the system, and in its invigorating and purifying effects it has gained a reputation which it must hold above all others in the market.
